

TABLE OF CONTENTS

FOREWORD by Doug Hardy . . . . .	vii
ACKNOWLEDGMENTS . . . . .	xi
INTRODUCTION . . . . .	xv
PART I – Take a Look Around—a Real Look Around!
Introduction—Discover What Is Really Out There . . . . .	3
Look Inside . . . . .	7
First Know Thyself—Now, Not Later . . . . .	7
This Is a Test; This Is Only a Test . . . . .	11
What Are You Good At? Ask Someone Else! . . . . .	15
Career Choice Goes Beyond What You Are Good At. . . . .	18
Abilities and Skills ≠ Interests and Passions. . . . .	22
You Have to Live with Your Values . . . . .	25
Don't Know What You Want? Then Start with the Opposite! . . . . .	29
Look Outside . . . . .	33
Career Information Is Just a Page or Two Away . . . . .	33
Talk to People—That's 'People,' Not 'Person' . . . . .	37
You Do Not Need to Talk to People in Person . . . . .	40
Lurk and Learn: Internet Listservs Open Your Eyes to New Possibilities. . . . .	44
Use Professional Associations to Explore Careers . . . . .	47
The Hidden Treasures in Career Center Placement Statistics. . . . .	50
Your School's Alums Will Probably Help You—but Only If You Ask! . . . . .	54

Look with Patience and an Open Mind . . . . .	59
Speed Kills—This Won't Be Fast . . . . .	59
You Can Make a Career Out of Almost Anything. . . . .	64
The Healthiest Attitude: 'I'm Not Lost; I'm Exploring! ' . . . .	68
Treat Career Exploration Like a Trip to the Toy Store
Look Around! Browse! . . . . .	72
When One Career Door Closes, Look for Others to Open . . .	76

PART II – Be Careful of What You Think You Know!

Introduction—Think About How You Think. . . . .	83
Confront Your Internal Beliefs . . . . .	87
Think 'What Will I Do First?' Instead of 'What Will I Do with My Life?' . . . . .	87
Question Your Sources as You Explore Career Options . . . .	91
Do Not Let Old Assumptions Keep You from Newfound Happiness . . . . .	95
Beware of Either/Or Thinking . . . . .	98
Career Decision-Making Traps to Avoid. . . . .	101
Confront Your External Influences . . . . .	105
Geography Matters in Your Career Decision Making. . . . .	105
Labor Market Forecasts—Handle with Care. . . . .	108
Money, Status, and Power Are Not the Only Forms of Pay. . . . .	111
It Is Hard to Make Career Decisions When You Are Dealing with Other Serious Issues . . . . .	115
Confront Your Conclusions . . . . .	119
You Are Not the Only One Who Is Struggling to Decide . .	119
Eliminate an Option Only If You Have Thoroughly Investigated It . . . . .	123

PART III – Build Your Skills and Experience through Hands-on Activities

Introduction—Experience Leads to Skills;     Skills Lead to Jobs . . . . .	129
---	------------

Focus on Action . . . . .	133
At Some Point, You Have to Stop Planning and Start Doing . . . . .	133
Experience Is Not Optional; It Is Essential . . . . .	137
Internship Is Just One Name for Valuable Experience. . . . .	140
Internships and Co-ops Give You a Competitive Advantage . . . . .	144
You Can Get Paid for an Unpaid Internship. . . . .	149
Starting at the Bottom Is Not a Sadistic Hazing Ritual. . . . .	152
Focus on Skills . . . . .	155
Develop the Soft Skills Employers Demand . . . . .	155
Your Moneymaking Jobs Matter More Than You Think . . . . .	159
Campus Activities Build Essential Skills That You May Overlook . . . . .	162
Your Classroom Experiences Matter to Employers . . . . .	165
Volunteer for Your Career . . . . .	168
Identify the Skills You Have Gained from Hobbies and Avocations . . . . .	171
Do Not Take Your Technology Skills for Granted . . . . .	174

PART IV – Land the Job You Really Want

Introduction—Think Like an Employer, Win the Job. . . . . .	181
Perfect Your Attitude. . . . . .	185
Entitlement Kills. . . . .	185
‘Give Me a Chance’ Will Give You No Chance. . . . .	189
Yes, You Do Have Contacts to Network With! . . . . .	192
It’s Not What You Know or Who You Know—It’s Both . . . . .	196
This Test Is Graded on a Curve . . . . .	199
Focus Is Critical to Job Search Success. . . . .	203
Perfect Your Approach. . . . . .	207
It Is Never Too Early to Start Your Job Search. . . . .	207
When in Doubt, Apply! . . . . .	211
You Can Beat the Low GPA Blues . . . . .	213
Customized, Carefully Crafted Documents Win Interviews— and Jobs. . . . .	217

Use Numbers to Give Context to Your Accomplishments . . . . .	221
On-Campus Recruiters Are Not the Only Ones with Job Openings . . . . .	225
Get Involved in a Professional Organization to Make Yourself Known . . . . .	229
Why Is Networking So Effective? The Reasons Have Little To Do with You . . . . .	233
Introverts Can Network Too. . . . .	237
Perfect Your Presentation . . . . .	241
Presentation Is Everything—Make Sure You Look Good on Paper and in Person . . . . .	241
Examples Beat Mere Words in Your Job Search. . . . .	245
Portfolios: Proof of Your Claims. . . . .	249
Practice Makes Perfect Where Interviewing Is Concerned . . .	252
Out-Research Your Competitors, Win the Job. . . . .	255
Interviewing Is a Two-Way Street . . . . .	258
The Power of a Simple Thank-You Note . . . . .	261
All Sorts of Factors Impact Your Job Search Success (or Lack Thereof) . . . . .	264
EPILOGUE—There Is No Need to Go It Alone:
10 Reasons to Visit Your Campus Career Center. . . . .	269
ADDITIONAL HELP. . . . .	275
ABOUT THE AUTHOR . . . . .	278
INDEX. . . . .	281